Area network part of the future

by Richard Zucaro
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Fiber optics, once thought to be a thing of the future, is becoming a part of the UCF's computer network.

Already there is a fiber optic cable between CEBA I and the Health and Physics Building, and from now on all cable laid will be fiber optic.

Dr. Hale Pringle of Computer Services said the reason for the use of fiber optics is planning for the future. He said, "We are planning for what does not yet exist, the future will be ultra-fast and fiber is the way things are going."

Another reason for UCF's use of fiber optics is the fact that Central Florida is the lightning capital of the world. A copper-based system is problematic due to lightning strikes. Fiber optics do not conduct electricity, so even a direct lightning strike on a fiber cable would destroy nothing on either side of the cable.

Another factor that makes fiber optics so desirable is its practically limitless capacity for speed once the cable is installed. The cable is only the pathway for the signal. It is a fiber optic transceiver at key points along the pathway that is responsible for boosting the signal to increase the speed and the strength.

According to Pringle, slow, inexpensive boosters are a beginning, because the system is designed so that the boosters are easily replaced to allow for growing technology and a bigger budget.

The Central Florida Research Park would like to become a part of the UCF local area network, but much is still in the planning stages. The feeling is it will happen, it just is a matter of how long it will take. Pringle said it is hard to estimate how far off a total fiber optic system is.

Student aid programs could receive government windfall

by Jeannene Burnham
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

A U.S. Senate plan to increase student loan programs by $900 million and Pell Grant funds by $1.6 billion should mean good news for UCF students on financial aid.

Student Government Vice President J.J. Mandato said, "If this is approved, it will change things dramatically for more students. I'm aware that in the past we've had to take cuts in Pell Grants. I'm a perfect example of a student who had to take a cut. A lot of students are unable to receive financial help."

Mandato said he was receiving aid for a while and now, all of the sudden he has been cut off. "It really hurts," said Mandato. He continued, "As a result of the recent cuts I feel students will have to turn to other sources of income, such as a part or full-time job. This will probably affect the students' grade point averages since they're not used to holding down a job and at the same time taking a full-time class load."

On Dec. 3, Mandato met with Financial Aid Director Richard S. Goodenough to see if he had been informed of the $900 million boost. Goodenough said "he has received a wire message with some possible good

Board of Regents approve new enrollment plan

Five-year plan will boost number of upper level students; moderate boost for lower

by Doris Pfister
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

A five-year enrollment plan was recently approved by the Board of Regents which gives UCF very modest growth at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

According to Daniel Coleman, director of Institutional Research, there will be very slight growth in the lower division enrollment. The plan calls for an additional 2,739 lower-level students for 1988-89 at all of UCF's campuses.

This figure remains the same throughout 1993 because area community colleges will serve the "first-time-in-college" students who may not be admitted to UCF.

In regards to the increased enrollment at the upper level, the 1988-89 figures show an increase of 6,241 students. This number increases to 6,354 for 1989-90.

In 1990-91 the upper level enrollment moderately increases to 6,467. For the remaining two years on the five-year enrollment plan the numbers steadily increases to 6,557 and 6,647 for 1991-92 and 1992-93, respectively.

According to Coleman, "The upper division growth is based on anticipated growth in community college graduates plus the growth associated with the migration of students who seek to enroll in upper division courses and have completed two years of undergraduate work at another institution."

Provost Richard Astro stated that an enrollment management task force will be formed in the near future. The group will review the problems facing UCF in terms of increased enrollment and, according to Astro, "provide a context in which decisions can be made regarding these problems."

Astro explained that the university must come to terms with the increasing number of students. The university must determine how it will meet its growing obligations to the students.

"The main question we are facing is how many students can we teach with what resources we have," said Astro.

There is not enough funding to provide for the increasing number of students in university programs.

The enrollment management task force will be lead by President Trevor Colbourn and Astro and will hold at least two open forums on matters relating to the enrollment problem. Dates and meeting times will be announced.

The increase also creates a problem with the demand for classes. "There is already a strain on the number of classes offered so the increase in enrollment will just add more," said Astro.

Astro added, "An additional concern is the rapid development of our facilities in Brevard and Daytona and increasing demands for the development of instructional programs elsewhere in our service area."

"The Orlando area is a fast growing area, therefore, there is the pressure from students who live in a city without a university who want an education. The more people there are, the more people want educations," Astro said.

"We just don't have the funds right now to handle the new courses that the students want. We are constantly trying to generate income, but it seems to be a never ending struggle," Astro said.

Lack of money cause for 1/3 of college dropouts

Staff Report
COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

About a third of the students who drop out of college leave for money reasons, a five-year examination of dropout patterns by the University of Maryland has concluded.

Some of the dropouts might have graduated "if they had received the benefits of existing programs or services," students affairs vice chancellor Richard Stimson said.

Trying to discover why students left college before graduating, Maryland's Student Affairs Office started following the progress of some 800 1980 freshmen, divided into a "representative group" of students varied backgrounds and a "minority group" of black students.

In all, almost 18 percent of the "representative group" and 21 percent of the "minority group" eventually left college.

Thirty-two percent of the "representative" and 44 percent of the minority dropouts said they left for financial reasons.

"That's a problem that higher education is facing right now," conceded Maryland Chancellor John Slaughter. "This campus must (provide more financial aid), but this campus shares that problem with the rest of the nation."

The Maryland study also showed that few of the dropouts used the counseling and advising resources available on the campus to help them solve money problems.

Students become sophisticated in choosing a college to attend

Staff Report
COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

Students are applying to more campuses and becoming "more sophisticated" in choosing which one to attend, two fall surveys indicated.

The phenomenon may help explain the mystery of why, when there are fewer 18-year-olds in the population, colleges are receiving record numbers of applications.

"Students," observed Kristen Persson of College Connections, a New York-based marketing firm that works with colleges, "have become smarter consumers."

In 1986, about 60 percent of the freshmen at private colleges applied to four or more schools, one third of the freshmen surveyed said they applied to at least four schools.

UCLA's Marilyn Schalit noted that statistics compiled during the last 20 years indicate more students now apply to more than one college.

In 1967, more than half the nation's college freshmen applied to just one school, Schalit said. But in 1986, only 35.3 percent applied to just one school.

"It was predicted that fewer 18-year-olds would mean colleges and universities would receive fewer applications," said Persson. "But that just hasn't happened. A higher proportion of 18-year-olds are enrolling in colleges."

"Students are realizing how competitive it is, and they're preparing better by taking courses to prepare for the SATs and ACTs," Persson explained. "They're also taking a better look at

"A few years ago, a college's name was the most important thing. That's not true any more."

more colleges."

"A few years ago, a college's name was the most important thing. That's not true any more," added John Klockentager, vice president of Buena Vista College in Iowa.

Students who in past years would apply to the state's larger schools, such as the University of Iowa, are now more closely examining their own needs and goals and choosing schools more carefully," he said.

Students also are shopping around to see which schools offer the best financial aid programs, said Dr. Kenneth C. Green of UCLA.

Students' increasing sophistication — and the dwindling number of 18-year-olds — has forced colleges and universities to adopt more aggressive marketing techniques, Green said. Schools have successfully maintained enrollment levels by appealing to older students and emphasizing graduate programs.

But the number of 18-year-olds will decline by 60 percent between 1988 and 1995, he added, forcing campuses to recruit more creatively.

"The worst is yet to come," said Green.

■ COMMENCEMENT

Fall commencement Dec. 14 for 1,000 students at UCF will signal a new look. For the first time, the ceremonies will close with a recessional, and honor graduates will be garbed in gold braid.

There will be two ceremonies, at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., in order to permit ample seating in the gymnasium for families and friends of graduates.

The morning speaker will be Jerry Chicone, Jr., president of the Greater Orlando Chamber of Commerce and prominent citrus grower. In the afternoon, former Florida Governor Reubin Askew will speak that afternoon to Business Administration and Engineering degree recipients.

■ AISP MEETING

The Association of Information Systems Professionals (AISP) will hold its Central Florida Chapter dinner meeting and Christmas party Dec. 8 at 5:30 p.m. at the Rosemont Country Club.

Student memberships and scholarships are available.

For more information, call Debbie McFerrin at 244-8047.

■ AD2 MEETING

AD2 of Greater Orlando will hold its monthly meeting and Tinsle Tangle Christmas Party Dec. 17 from 7 p.m. to 12 a.m. at Reflections Apartment's Clubhouse on S.R. 436, Casselberry.

Guests are welcome. Cost is $5 or bring an appetizer. For more information, call Peter Cranis at 889-6069.

■ PROFESSOR HONORED

Dr. Nancy McGee of UCF has been appointed state coordinator for the 1988 Achievement Awards in Writing program directed by the National Council of Teachers of English.

McGee, a professor in UCF's College of Education since 1970, will oversee regional committees composed of high school and college teachers in judging entries from high school seniors around the state.

More than 6,000 students were nominated for the awards this year. Of that number, 800 were cited for excellence in writing and recommended to colleges and universities for admission and financial aid.

■ SAFE RIDE HOME

We've all heard it a million times: Don't drink and drive. But sadly, the statistics show each week that some people didn't hear it at all. And now they won't hear music or lectures or laughter, or anything else, ever.

That's why Yellow Cab is sponsoring the "Safe Ride Home" program. As a member, you'll receive a special Safe Ride Home Card. If you've had too much to drink, or a friend has—or you find yourself in any dangerous situation where a safe ride home can make a difference, call. A cab will get you home safe and sound, free.

Graduation for some is only a week away. Don't let drunk driving shatter your plans. Get your Safe Ride Home card at the Kiosk for $5.

Arizona clears up alcohol policy at football games

Staff Report
COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

Facing pressure from students and unwilling to establish contradictory alcohol policies, the University of Arizona will ban liquor from the private stadium skyboxes planned for the 1988 football season.

The University of Arizona Foundation, the group supervising the construction of 37 stadium suites, asked the university to allow fans to bring and serve alcohol in the private boxes. Alcohol is otherwise banned at the stadium.

"The university declined not to amend its policy," said Dr. Allan Beigel, vice president of university relations.

"We have heard concerns about double standards," said UA President Henry Koffler. "We do not want to create an atmosphere of divisiveness and hostility between those who sit in the stadium and those who sit in the suites."

Students had argued that allowing only certain fans to drink in the stadium was unfair, while campus officials worried they wouldn't be able to rent the skyboxes if drinking was banned.

Some potential skybox renters have told the university they are not interested in dry suites, Beigel said, but the university has leased enough of the boxes to begin construction.

The skyboxes, called "scholarship suites" because profits will be used for scholarship funds, will cost $19,000 to $25,000 to rent each year.

Earlier this year, the University of Tennessee decided to reverse an earlier decision, and ban alcohol from its new stadium skyboxes. "The university felt it was in its best interest to have a consistent policy on alcohol on campus," explained Tennessee Associate Athletic Director Mitch Barnhart.

In 1984, University of Florida students protested a decision to allow skybox renters to drink despite a campus-wide liquor prohibition. The uproar quickly faded, however.

At the Florida Citrus Bowl in Orlando, drinking is allowed in the skyboxes, which are located over the press box. Beer is also sold in stadium concession stands.

Sour game was end to otherwise sweet & successful season

Some observations The Central Florida Future made during a Saturday of sports events.

The football game: A great season ended with a game that left the fans with a somewhat sour taste in their mouths. Yet the Knights did have a great season, and that is the important part to remember. The beginning of a success-oriented football future began with last year's 6-5 mark, and one of the many peaks the program will enjoy occurred with this year's Division II semifinal appearance. This will rub off on other athletic programs as well, leading to a universal success emanating from the Athletic Department.

Also, we congratulate Coach Gene McDowell for putting Darin Slack back on the field in the fourth quarter to finish out the Knights' final drive. It shows class to let someone finish out his playing days on the field instead of on the bench. In this case it was a senior quarterback who rewrote most of the UCF passing records before suffering a few bad games at the end of his college career.

The fans: The adage, "Put a winner on the field and you put people in the stands," proved true for the second straight weekend. However, where were all those fans before?

A predominant amount of the "new" fans were college students, and for college students to go somewhere, the place must be packaged as an event. The playoffs were an event, as were many of the regular-season games this year. The football program had an upturn due to this, and now it is like a popular concert; a person goes because everyone else goes.

A problem spot concerned the official attendance. For the second straight week, the announced attendance was at least 5,000—8,000 less than the actual attendance. Was it due to another problem with turnstiles failing to accurately record the number of people pressing against its metal bars. Or do Florida Citrus Bowl officials have another reason for under-reporting the attendance?

The basketball game: The lack of height crippled UCF in the title game of the Merrill Lynch Classic, as they fell to a taller Campbell College, 91-82. Yet the recruiting of quality athletes is also going on in this area, and the positive effect of a successful football program will rub off here as well.

One point that did irritate us, though, was the antics of the cheerleaders while Campbell College was attempting foul shots. The cheerleaders yelled, cheered and pounded the megaphones on the floor while an opposing player was attempting to convert the charity shots.

An unwritten sportsmanship rule says that although fans may engage in rowdy behavior, cheerleaders should show enough class to avoid such actions. The Central Florida Future hopes this will be observed at subsequent games.

Admit it, it was a hell of a team

It was a hell of a team.

Think about it, a national ranking from the beginning of the season, a 9-4 record, the greatest quarterback and receiver in UCF history, and finally, the NCAA Division II semi-finals. Not a bad tally.

But even though it was a season filled with accomplishment, it still hurts to fall short of a goal. And this team's goal was the national championship.

Of course, when you consider that only one team in the nation can reach that level (and Troy State probably will) coming close is not such a bad thing.

To the players, however, the only thing that is left is the memory. And with that comes the worry of how they will be remembered.

After our narrow win in the first game of the playoffs, quarterback Darin Slack suffered quite a bit of abuse because of his poor performance.

He took it, knowing that such treatment comes with the job, but in a class the Monday after, I heard him say to himself, "How quickly they forget." He referred to his record-setting games—the times when the defense could have taken the night off. None of the good seemed to matter.

But the judgment was just a point-in-time reaction. People were only looking at the one performance. In the long run, the whole season will be considered.

Saturday, when the game was out of reach and the

DON WITTEKIND

Kamikaze columnist

new quarterback continued to play, at least a couple of fans remembered.

They boomed from the stands, "Come on coach, put Slack back in! This other kid's got years to play, put Slack back in!"

When it appeared the coach would not oblige they redirected their yelling to Slack himself, "You're still the best, baby! We love you!"

A second later, the decision was made. Slack smiled, put on his helmet with a look of determination and approached the coach. A moment later he ran onto the field. The seconds ticked as he tried to organize his team, but he managed to get the play off in time. He dropped back, passed, and the stands came alive. Touchdown.

They remembered, and they always will. Maybe they won't recall the names, but you can bet that they will remember the quarterback, the receiver, and that amazing defense.

Yep, it was a hell of a team.

■ PATROLS NECESSARY

Editor:

On behalf of the conscientious and hardworking, and might I also add now incensed, student assistants employed by the Library, I wish to comment on two statements printed in the Dec. 1 issue of The Central Florida Future.

The first concerns salary for students employed by the Library. Until the Fall '87 semester, the Library had not been able to offer student assistants a beginning hourly salary of more than $3.45. This semester we were able to offer a beginning hourly salary of $4.00. The raise increment is 25 cents per hour, as reported in the Future. However, the raise is effective once annually, following completion of a year's satisfactory service, not each semester as stated in the article.

The second comment pertains to the unfortunate characterization of the students who constitute the Library Patrol. These student assistants, whose responsibilities were accurately described in an earlier Future article, perform a valuable and necessary service on behalf of the Library and its patrons. The clipboard carried by the members of the Patrol is used to record and report building and maintenance needs which must be met to ensure the comfort and safety of users. Their presence acts as a deterrent to crime against patrons or their property; and protects library property from theft or mutilation. Their enforcement of the policies prohibiting eating and drinking the Library free of litter and insects. Their efforts in reinforcing the no-smoking policy avert the risk of fire and its potential harm to patrons, the collection and the building.

The Library depends heavily on its student assistants and places a high value on their service. We believe our patrons share our concern that we provide a safe, secure environment in which to work and study and appreciate the efforts of our student assistants in providing such an environment.

Trojans deflate Air Supply, 31-10

by Paul Owers
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

There would have to be changes, they told us. The quarterback would have to begin by throwing only to his own kind, the wide receiver would have to overcome ankle soreness thereby returning to early season success, and (if possible) the defense would have to become just a bit more stingy.

Forget it. It didn't happen.

After Saturday's 31-10 thumping from Troy State, any words spoken by those in black and gold were nothing more than postgame apologies.

"We had trouble," offensive tackle Craig Rodrigue said softly. "It just wasn't meant to be."

"We just didn't play well offensively," said Bernard Ford who finished the game with four receptions for 72 yards.

It was the fourth game in as many weeks in which the offense was plagued by turnovers, (there were eight Saturday) a next to non-existent running game, and dropped passes.

"Maybe we got too complicated," said offensive coordinator Mike Kruczek.

After Eddie O'Brien let loose with a 41-yard field goal with 12 seconds remaining in the first quarter, Troy State began what would be an afternoon of scoring via UCF turnovers. Trojan quarterback and Harlon Hill Trophy candidate (Division II Player of the Year) Mike Turk penetrated through the heart of the Knights' defense and ran 54 yards for the touchdown. All this despite UCF being offside.

Troy State added to its lead after Reggie Edwards fumbled the ensuing kickoff. Turk hit wide receiver Mike Kelly with an 18-yard scoring strike to make it 14-3.

The Trojans added a field goal with just under five minutes to play in the half, but it appeared the Knights would answer that with a scoring drive of its own when Darin Slack passed the Knights from their own 20 to the Trojan 24. An interception on the next play ruined that drive.

"Any time you're successful, teams are going to try and find a way to stop you," Slack said. "They did a good job against me."

Freshman quarterback Shane Willis, playing in his first college game, started the second half hoping to give the Knights some sort of inspiration. After being sacked and throwing an interception on consecutive plays, Willis recovered to lead the team 70 yards in 13 plays, but failed to generate any points.

"It's a whole lot different than it is in high school," he said.

The Trojans, meanwhile, capitalized on a Willis fumble, a short punt and a facemask penalty to score its final two touchdowns. By then, you had to stay to the end to beat the traffic.

After Willis drove UCF to the Trojan 21 in the final minutes, coaches reinserted Slack, who promptly found wideout Poe White for the touchdown.

All that was left now was to sum up the season, UCF's most successful in history.

"I'm happy with the season," said Head Coach Gene McDowell, trying desperately to accentuate the positive. "It's been a great year."

The Gordo/CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

UCF safety Keith Evans (#32) rides down a Trojan opponent Saturday afternoon. Troy State ran past the Knights by a 31-10 score.

Season justifies football team's existence

Scan down this year's UCF football schedule and you should arrive at this most basic belief:

Fire ants don't eye a picnic basket and walk the other way.

That, in summation, is the defining image of Knights Football '87. With the meat of its schedule as soft as a cream filling and intent on enjoying it like any other delicacy, UCF spent this season fending off the harsh words of criticism like any other would-be tackler. Still, they remained unscathed.

"Never overlook the positive points of kicking a puppy," they could be heard saying in unison.

When the underdog was the prey—as it was eight times this season—the Knights always took the appropriate route to a rout. Quarterback Darin Slack and wide receiver Bernard Ford did the shoveling and the sand was often soft.

The defense allowed a combined 210 points—just over 16 a game—and took any attempt at scoring as degradation of the highest order. Remember Wyatt

PAUL OWERS

After hours

Bogan? Isn't he the all-world linebacker who was red-shirted at season's start and supposedly the key to a standout year on defense? Amazing.

But all the moments weren't supposed to make the highlights film.

There was the annoying ineffectiveness of the offense in the Eastern Kentucky game, followed by a Slack interception with seconds remaining against Georgia Southern that could have won it.

The all-time misfortune appeared to have occurred against Florida A&M in Tallahassee. Slack had the Knights in position for a playoff-clinching touchdown, but a penalty and Poe White's muff of a perfect pass temporarily denied them the experience of euphoria.

Once in the playoffs and the eyes of Orlando upon them, the Knights bumbled and fumbled their way to a 12-10 lucky break against Indiana (Pa.).

Saturday, the playoff party continued, but this time Troy State was the invitee. Facing a two-touchdown hole at halftime, Head Coach Gene McDowell abandoned the senior Slack in favor of freshman Shane Willis.

"It wasn't that Darin was playing poorly, I was just hoping (Willis) would give us a spark," McDowell said later.

It may not have been the most intelligent of moves. It was like trying to chop down a redwood with a butter knife. Although Willis was effective in moving the team, he failed to significantly impact the outcome. Slack had guided the team this far; it was his

Change of guard earlier than expected

Willis plays well in first college game; 19 of 32 for 204 yards in playoff loss

by Glenn Carrasquillo
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

The changing of the guard came earlier than expected for the UCF football team. Freshman quarterback Shane Willis started the second half of Saturday's Division II semifinal playoff game in place of senior Darin Slack.

Willis played well, considering it was the first time he had taken a snap all season. After leading Lakeland High School to the Florida Class 5-A Championship last year, Willis' first action as a college player came against Troy State, historically a Division II power.

After being sacked and intercepted his first two snaps, Willis completed 19 of 32 passes for 204 yards, compared to Slack's 17 of 28 for 203 yards and three interceptions. Willis also showed foot speed and agility, something Slack may be lacking.

"I know Shane was quicker than Darin and that it would provide a spark in the game," UCF coach Gene McDowell said.

Willis looked impressive on his second drive, completing eight of nine passes before a missed field goal which would have made the score 17-6, with 5:25 left in the third quarter.

The move to insert Willis was a costly one, since the redshirt is now officially a freshman by losing a year of eligibility after playing in the game.

But after a pregame meeting with Willis, his father and McDowell, it was decided that

Three UCF women on international team

by Chris Brady
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Three UCF women soccer players were selected to the United States National Team last week. The team will represent the country in an international tournament this month in Taiwan.

Amy Allmann, Michelle Akers and Kim Wyant were selected to the team. North Carolina Coach Anson Dorrance, who has won six NCAA titles in the last seven years, will coach the team.

Allmann, a senior goalkeeper, allowed only 14 goals this season for a .84 average goals against per game. Allmann also registered 10 shutouts this season and was named to the Florida Intercollegiate women's soccer All-State team. In 19 matches last year, Allmann allowed just 10 goals for a .62 average.

Akers scored 13 goals and added 10 assists this season for the Knights. The senior forward was named the Most Valuable Offensive Player in the NCAA tournament and was voted MVP for the All-State team. Akers received All-American honors her sophomore (14 goals, 4 assists) and junior (14 goals, 12 assists) seasons.

Wyant is a former UCF goalie who played from 1982 through 1985. Rudy stated that she was a surprise as she has rehabilitated from a serious knee injury. While at UCF, Wyant recorded 18 shutouts and 122 saves.

The team was selected at the United States Soccer Federation Senior Division All-Star Tournament in Orlando on Thanksgiving weekend. In addition to the National Team, selections were also made for the National Senior Division Pool of 32 at the All-Star Tournament.

Seven UCF players were among the 32 selected. Allmann, Akers and Wyant were also chosen as well as UCF freshman goalie Karen Richter, sophomore forward Sandy Carter, senior forward Jean Varas and junior forward Danielle Thomas.

The pool of 32 players will be reduced to a team of 18 for an international tournament in Mexico next July. UCF Coach Jim Rudy has been rumored of being named the coach of this team.

In other soccer news, Rudy announced that defending national champion North Carolina will play the UCF women's team in Orlando next year. North Carolina's men's team, which is presently in the Final Four, will also play in Orlando against the UCF men.

"We are working on next year's schedule right now and it will be tough again," said Rudy, whose women's team finished 13-5 and made it to the national semifinals. "We are also recruiting harder than ever."

job to finish. Willis, meanwhile, loses a year of eligibility for playing.

But 9-4 is hardly the mark of mediocrity. The standard has been set.

And you get the feeling that the program will never have to explain its existence again.

And graduation was just two weeks away.

We've all heard it a million times: Don't drink and drive. But sadly, the statistics show each week that some people didn't hear it at all. And now they won't hear music or lectures or laughter, or anything else. Ever.

That's why Yellow Cab is sponsoring the "Safe Ride Home" program. As a member, you'll receive a special Safe Ride Home card. If you've had too much to drink, or a friend has—or you find yourself in any dangerous situation where a safe ride home can make the difference, call. We'll send a Yellow Cab to pick you up and get you home, safe and sound. Free. All you have to do is present your card to the Yellow Cab driver when he arrives.

College life means you've got a lot to look forward to. Don't let drunk driving shatter your plans.

Knights lose ML Classic, 91-82

by Glenn Carrasquillo
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

The UCF men's basketball team lost in the final game of the Merrill Lynch Classic 91-82 to Campbell University Saturday night at the UCF gymnasium.

The worst part of the loss for the UCF fans may have been watching Campbell players cut down the net, which is customary for teams to do after winning a tournament.

The Knights couldn't repeat the catch-up style of play they used to beat St. Peter's University Friday night in the first game of the four team tourney. After trailing the whole game, the Knights won in the final seconds, 67-63. Campbell defeated Florida International University Friday, 90-77, to advance to the final.

After trailing most of Saturday's game, the Knights came within three points with 2:38 left in the game. But that was the closest UCF came before a taller Campbell team pulled away.

"This was the first game we were out-rebounded and we knew it would be a problem," UCF coach Phil Carter said.

The Knights almost made up for a lack of height with the outside shooting of Chris Wallen and Pat Crocklin, each tossing in 20 points. Wallen made four 3-pointers, accounting for 12 of his points.

"We need the guys to hit the 3-pointer when they give it to us," Carter said.

"If we get our minds set we can play good basketball," Crocklin said.

The Knights, now 1-3, will be going on a three game road trip, starting Saturday with Maryland-Baltimore County, then George Mason and South Florida.

"The outlook for December is always a bear for us," Carter said.

playing Willis was for the best. "When it came down to helping the team, I said forget it (losing the eligibility)," Willis said.

Slack, who led the Knights to the playoffs, finished the season completing 256 of 486 passes for 3457 yards and 28 touchdowns. He was intercepted 26 times. He holds nearly every passing record in the history of the program.

"He has been a great factor and helped this football program tremendously," McDowell said.

Fittingly, Slack had his last hurrah when inserted for the final drive of Saturday's game. He threw a 24-yard touchdown pass to Poe White to make the final score 31-10.

"It was like the cherry on top of a sundae for my career here at UCF," Slack said.
